Many years ago fishermen in Japan used birds to catch fish. This art of fishing is around one thousand years old. But today, fishing like this has become a sport. At night they sail their boats with three or four birds in one hand. They tie a piece of string tightly around the neck of each bird. This way they can't take up the fish they catch. When played as a sport, fishermen take up the fish they catch. The more fish your birds catch, you'll be the winner.

1. In Japan, some people catch fish with birds-----.

1) as a kind of sport

2) to give food to the birds

3) during the day

4) to practice art

2. They will win the game if-----.

1) Their boat is faster than others

2) they catch more dead fish

3) their birds catch more fish

4) their birds eat more fish

3. They tie a string around the neck of each bird to-----.

1) help it catch fish

2) keep the birds tightly close

3) let the fish not go down its throat

4) encourage it to catch fish
